

NEW IDEAS IN CHILD AND EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY

The Russian Psychological Society, a member of the European Federation of Psychologists' Association, International Union of Psychological Science, and Commission of the Russian Federation on UNESCO, is pleased to announce a new journal, New Ideas in Child and Educational Psychology (NICEP).

New Ideas in Child and Educational Psychology (NICEP) is an online journal that presents basic and applied research on child development and education conducted around the world.

The Journal is a step forward in providing authors with a more accessible and effective way to convey research findings to the international psychological science community.

New Ideas in Child and Educational Psychology (NICEP) aims to encourage and promote voices and ideas of researchers from different cultures.

New Ideas in Child and Educational Psychology (NICEP) is based on Open Science principles enabling research results to be freely communicated.

- A key feature of the Journal is extended abstracts published in English, French, Russian and Spanish to promote international communication and discussion.
- The Journal will be published four times a year.
- The publisher will charge no fees for authors or readers.
- A comprehensive peer-review process supervised by a qualified panel of experts guarantees a fair and efficient publishing process.
- Our goal is to assist in facilitating and developing a fast, effective, and genuinely collaborative approach that will enhance the overall manuscript submission and peer review process for all.

New Ideas in Child and Educational Psychology (NICEP)'s broad Editorial Board is comprised of interdisciplinary and international representatives from the academic fields covered in the Journal.
